News

Starts at 6m14s.

- iPhone 7 released and has no headphone jack. I'm not even going to bother with a source since it's all over every single bit of news.
- The Phantom Ransomware pretends to be Windows Update.
- There's a Pokemon-named rootkit targeting Linux systems.
- Peak Web is claiming bankruptcy and filing a lawsuit against Cisco as the cause of outages.
- There was a pretty nasty MySQL vulnerability.
- The Tor browser is absolute trash at doing what it claims to do.
- A judge has ruled that the use of state-enacted malware is a "search".
  - Not that it matters much anyways, since the protections of unwarranted searches/seizures is rapidly declining.
- Techsource ran a giveaway and didn't deliver the prize in a very honest manner.
- The FBI wants an 'adult conversation' about backdoor crypto.
  - Except that's entirely what experts tried to already do. The FBI didn't like the answers they got.
- There's a new Linux trojan that turns devices into a botnet.

Notes

Starts at 19m13s.

I was drinking Left Hand Brewing's Wake Up Dead imperial stout, New Belgium's Fat Tire, and Weyerbacher's Merry Monk. Jthan was drinking Post's Howdy Beer pilsener. Paden was drinking Grant's Scotch.

- We mostly just talk about our setups. There aren't really any notes to speak of for this segment!
  - But we talk about vi(m) vs. emacs more in-depth in S0E5.

Sysbadadministration Award

In this segment, we highlight system administration mistakes. Think of them as the IT equivalent of the Darwin Awards. (57m20s)

A childcare service provider lost all its data - right before the schoolyear started. And find out the backups have been trashed for a year.

Errata

- 99.999% uptime is actually 5m15.6s downtime a year.
- Jthan, Arch absolutely has a testing branch.
- Jthan was asking in IRC before recording if there was a way to software-emulate a GPU.
